

Learning from mistakes in New Zealand hospitals: what else do we need besides "no-fault"?

October 19, 2010

Soleimani F. Learning from mistakes in New Zealand hospitals: what else do we need besides "no-fault"? N Z Med J. 2006;119(1239):U2099.

<https://psnet.ahrq.gov/issue/learning-mistakes-new-zealand-hospitals-what-else-do-we-need-besides-no-fault>

The author surveyed New Zealand physicians regarding their medical error reporting behaviors. Most respondents felt they should report an error to both the patient and hospital if a major adverse event was anticipated, but they were less likely to report errors with minor complications.