

Health service accreditation as a predictor of clinical and organisational performance: a blinded, random, stratified study.

March 23, 2011

Braithwaite J, Greenfield D, Westbrook JI, et al. Health service accreditation as a predictor of clinical and organisational performance: a blinded, random, stratified study. Qual Saf Health Care. 2010;19(1):14-21. doi:10.1136/qshc.2009.033928.

<https://psnet.ahrq.gov/issue/health-service-accreditation-predictor-clinical-and-organisational-performance-blinded-random>

In this Australian study, accreditation by regulatory organizations was associated with a positive safety culture, but was not associated with clinical performance.