

Parents' perspective on safety in neonatal intensive care: a mixed-methods study.

December 4, 2016

Lyndon A, Jacobson CH, Fagan KM, et al. Parents' perspectives on safety in neonatal intensive care: a mixed-methods study. BMJ Qual Saf. 2014;23(11):902-9. doi:10.1136/bmjqs-2014-003009.

<https://psnet.ahrq.gov/issue/parents-perspective-safety-neonatal-intensive-care-mixed-methods-study>

This interview, observation, and survey study found that parents of infants in neonatal intensive care units identified three core aspects of safety: physical safety relating to immediate treatment, the effect of care on future development, and emotional safety for infants and family, such as having confidence in caregivers. These results argue for enhancing patient and family engagement in safety in this setting.