

Explaining the unexplainable—the impact of physicians' attitude towards litigation on their incident disclosure behaviour.

January 7, 2015

Renkema E, Broekhuis MH, Ahaus K. Explaining the unexplainable - the impact of physicians' attitude towards litigation on their incident disclosure behaviour. J Eval Clin Pract. 2014;20(5):649-56.

doi:10.1111/jep.12194.

<https://psnet.ahrq.gov/issue/explaining-unexplainable-impact-physicians-attitude-towards-litigation-their-incident>

Dutch physicians varied widely in their attitudes related to malpractice litigation. The relationship between attitudes and disclosure behaviors was not straightforward, but physicians with negative attitudes toward malpractice were more likely to express a reluctance to disclose incidents to patients.