

Data-driven implementation of alarm reduction interventions in a cardiovascular surgical ICU.

March 25, 2017

Allan SH, Doyle PA, Sapirstein A, et al. Data-Driven Implementation of Alarm Reduction Interventions in a Cardiovascular Surgical ICU. Jt Comm J Qual Patient Saf. 2017;43(2):62-70.

doi:10.1016/j.jcjq.2016.11.004.

<https://psnet.ahrq.gov/issue/data-driven-implementation-alarm-reduction-interventions-cardiovascular-surgical-icu>

Reducing the number of alarms can help alleviate alarm fatigue and the associated patient safety hazards. In this study, researchers successfully implemented a number of interventions which led to a 61% decrease in average alarms per monitored bed in a cardiovascular surgical intensive care unit and a reduction in cardiorespiratory events.