

Measurement as a performance driver: the case for a national measurement system to improve patient safety.

April 26, 2017

Krause TR, Bell KJ, Pronovost P, et al. Measurement as a Performance Driver: The Case for a National Measurement System to Improve Patient Safety. J Patient Saf. 2021;17(3):e128-e134.

doi:10.1097/PTS.0000000000000315.

<https://psnet.ahrq.gov/issue/measurement-performance-driver-case-national-measurement-system-improve-patient-safety>

The lack of effective measures of patient safety hinders sustained error reduction. This review examined published estimates of patient harm in health care and variations in measures used to determine those numbers. The authors suggest that a national nonpunitive approach to data collection would enhance opportunities for improvement.