

Fixed-dose combination antihypertensives and risk of medication errors.

January 27, 2019

Moriarty F, Bennett K, Fahey T. Fixed-dose combination antihypertensives and risk of medication errors. Heart. 2019;105(3):204-209. doi:10.1136/heartjnl-2018-313492.

<https://psnet.ahrq.gov/issue/fixed-dose-combination-antihypertensives-and-risk-medication-errors>

Combination medications are frequently used to improve adherence, but they may also contribute to medication errors. Using pharmacy claims data, researchers found that the prescribing of antihypertensive fixed-dose combination medication was associated with a greater risk of therapeutic duplication.