

Pharmaceutical interventions to improve safety of chemotherapy-treated cancer patients: a cross-sectional study.

June 14, 2019

Daupin J, Perrin G, Lhermitte-Pastor C, et al. Pharmaceutical interventions to improve safety of chemotherapy-treated cancer patients: A cross-sectional study. J Oncol Pract. 2019;25(5):1195-1203. doi:10.1177/1078155219826344.

<https://psnet.ahrq.gov/issue/pharmaceutical-interventions-improve-safety-chemotherapy-treated-cancer-patients-cross>

Prior research has shown that oncology pharmacists can improve the safety of chemotherapy administration. In this prospective study, researchers found that 129 of 1346 chemotherapy prescriptions issued in a 1-month period at a single university hospital required intervention by an oncology pharmacist. The majority of such interventions were perceived as having a significant impact on patient safety.