

The relationship between culture of safety and rate of adverse events in long-term care facilities.

May 15, 2019

Abusalem S, Polivka B, Coty M-B, et al. The Relationship Between Culture of Safety and Rate of Adverse Events in Long-Term Care Facilities. J Patient Saf. 2021;17(4):299-304.

doi:10.1097/PTS.0000000000000587.

<https://psnet.ahrq.gov/issue/relationship-between-culture-safety-and-rate-adverse-events-long-term-care-facilities>

Prior research on the relationship between culture of safety and adverse events has produced conflicting results. Using culture of safety survey data from five long-term care facilities, researchers found an association between improved safety culture scores and a decreased risk of certain adverse events.