

A mixed-method study of practitioners' perspectives on issues related to EHR medication reconciliation at a health system.

May 8, 2019

Rangachari P, Dellsperger KC, Fallaw D, et al. A Mixed-Method Study of Practitioners' Perspectives on Issues Related to EHR Medication Reconciliation at a Health System. Qual Manag Health Care. 2019;28(2):84-95. doi:10.1097/QMH.0000000000000208.

<https://psnet.ahrq.gov/issue/mixed-method-study-practitioners-perspectives-issues-related-ehr-medication-reconciliation>

This interview and survey study assessed provider perspectives on how electronic health records support medication reconciliation. Investigators found that there was a lack of understanding about both the technical process of using the electronic health record as intended and the workflow needed. The authors suggest applying a sociotechnical model to enhance medication reconciliation using the electronic health record.