

Establishing a multi-institutional quality and patient safety consortium: collaboration across affiliates in a community-based medical school.

January 20, 2021

Hillman E, Paul J, Neustadt M, et al. Establishing a multi-institutional quality and patient safety consortium: collaboration across affiliates in a community-based medical school. Acad Med. 2020;95(12):1864-1873. doi:10.1097/acm.0000000000003552.

<https://psnet.ahrq.gov/issue/establishing-multi-institutional-quality-and-patient-safety-consortium-collaboration-across>

Quality improvement and patient safety (QIPS) programs are intended to increase patient safety competency during graduate medical education. This article describes the development and implementation of a consortium aimed to improve QIPS education at a large academic health center. Primary goals of the consortium include to (1) expand learner-driven interprofessional opportunities, (2) leverage simulation training, and (3) engage and collaborate with community stakeholders.