

Long-term care nurses' experiences with patient safety incident management: a qualitative study.

August 4, 2021

Serre N, Espin S, Indar A, et al. Long-term care nurses' experiences with patient safety incident management: a qualitative study. J Nurs Care Qual. 2022;37(2):188-194.

doi:10.1097/ncq.0000000000000583.

<https://psnet.ahrq.gov/issue/long-term-care-nurses-experiences-patient-safety-incident-management-qualitative-study>

Safety concerns are common in long-term care (LTC) facilities. This qualitative study of LTC nurses explored nurses' experiences managing patient safety incidents (PSI). Three categories were identified: commitment to resident safety, workplace culture, and emotional reaction. Barriers and facilitators were also discussed.