

Bedside clinicians' perceptions on the contributing role of diagnostic errors in acutely ill patient presentation: a survey of academic and community practice.

March 16, 2022

Huang C, Barwise A, Soleimani J, et al. Bedside clinicians' perceptions on the contributing role of diagnostic errors in acutely ill patient presentation: a survey of academic and community practice. J Patient Saf. 2022;18(2):e454-e462. doi:10.1097/pts.0000000000000840.

<https://psnet.ahrq.gov/issue/bedside-clinicians-perceptions-contributing-role-diagnostic-errors-acutely-ill-patient>

---

Identifying and reducing diagnostic errors remains a critical patient safety concern. This prospective study asked clinicians if they perceived that a diagnostic error played a part in rapid response team activations or unplanned admissions to the intensive care unit. Clinicians reported that 18% of acute care patients experienced diagnostic errors.