

Development and pilot evaluation of an electronic health record usability and safety self-assessment tool.

August 24, 2022

Pruitt Z, Howe JL, Krevat S, et al. Development and pilot evaluation of an electronic health record usability and safety self-assessment tool. JAMIA Open. 2022;5(3):ooac070. doi:10.1093/jamiaopen/ooac070.

<https://psnet.ahrq.gov/issue/development-and-pilot-evaluation-electronic-health-record-usability-and-safety-self>

Poor usability of electronic health record (EHR)-based computerized provider order entry (CPOE) can lead to adverse events. Using a newly developed self-administered assessment tool, researchers identified several EHR usability and safety issues across medication, laboratory, and radiology CPOE functions.