

High-risk medication in home care nursing: a Delphi study.

September 7, 2022

Dumitrescu I, Casteels M, De Vlieghe K, et al. High-risk medication in home care nursing: a Delphi study. J Patient Saf. 2022;18(5):435-443. doi:10.1097/pts.0000000000001023.

<https://psnet.ahrq.gov/issue/high-risk-medication-home-care-nursing-delphi-study>

Medication errors and other adverse events are thought to occur in 10% of home care patients. This Delphi study identified 27 high-risk medications (e.g., oral chemotherapy, anticoagulants) in home care nursing that require a specific procedure and an additional 28 that warrant additional monitoring. Home care agencies and researchers should focus on developing and evaluating policies to improve safety of high-risk medications.