

Safety of office-based lens surgery: U.S. multicenter study

October 25, 2023

Kugler LJ, Kapeles MJ, Durrie DS. Safety of office-based lens surgery: U.S. multicenter study. J Cataract Refract Surg. 2023;49(9):907-911. doi:10.1097/j.jcrs.0000000000001231.

<https://psnet.ahrq.gov/issue/safety-office-based-lens-surgery-us-multicenter-study>

Cataract surgery is a common ophthalmic procedure in the United States and is increasingly performed in office-based settings. This study assessed the rates of intra- or post-operative adverse events in three types of lens surgeries, including cataracts. Findings suggest similar or lower adverse event rates for office-based cataract or refractive lens surgery when compared to surgeries performed in ambulatory surgery centers or hospital operating rooms.